Step into three centuries of history, where timeless charm meets understated luxury. Finca Tahona, the first home ever built in Tiagua, is more than a property – it is a living piece of Lanzarote's heritage. Lovingly restored from a ruin into an exquisite private retreat, it has been celebrated in Santiago Alemán's Tesoros de la Isla and César Manrique's architectural collections as a rare architectural treasure. From the moment you pass through the main entrance, you feel the soul of the island – thick volcanic stone walls, handcrafted woodwork, and original detailing, all beautifully complemented by bespoke contemporary touches and modern comforts. A Home of Distinction and Style The main house...
